referiert zum Thema

The Future of International Commercial Law in the Digital World

am Dienstag, 23. Januar 2018 um 18:15 Uhr
im Hörsaal 44/E04 des European Legal Studies Institute (ELSI)
Süsterstraße 28, Osnabrück.

The rapid development of digital technology has had a significant impact on many sectors. Established ways of conducting business transactions have come under pressure from new business models which take full advantage of the digital environment, not least its global reach, vast capacity and speed. Its effects are also increasingly felt in many areas of the law. In this lecture, Professor Twigg-Flesner will explore the implications of digital technology for the future development of International Commercial Law. He will consider, in particular, whether the global reach of the digital economy will require the development of new legal rules at the international level and consider the extent to which current approaches towards making International Commercial Law will need to change.

Professor Christian Twigg-Flesner LL.B. PCHE Ph.D. (Sheffield) is Professor of International Commercial Law at the University of Warwick (since September 2017). Previously, he was Professor of Commercial Law at the University of Hull (from August 2010). Before joining Hull in 2004, he had been a Lecturer at Nottingham Trent University (1999-2002) and Sheffield (2002-4). He is also a Senior International Fellow at the University of Bayreuth (2016-18), Fellow of the European Law Institute, an Associate Academic Fellow of the Honourable Society of the Inner Temple, and one of the Law editors for the Journal of Consumer Policy.
